London Businessman, and grassroot of a No Campaign, Malcolm Offord, was distressed to find that the famous children's hospital had Ordered his Nob severed. It may no longer be shown on cinema screens in Scotlandshire.

Mrs Offord reportedly was pleased at the hospital's decision. "It was pretty disgusting", she said, "I really wished that I had never seen it. Malcolm really should stop this Nob Orders stuff. It's embarassing to see his Nob in CinemaWide, and his ambition to create a 3D version is as ridiculous as his pretension that it is of any use at all."

Great Osborne Ormond Street Hospital said that it was a clinical decision, and that they were taking no sides in the debate. However, a source said that the decision was strongly influenced by their "mission to provide world-class clinical care and training, pioneering new research and treatments in partnership with others for the benefit of children in the UK and worldwide

"As specialists in young people, we are well aware of the dangerous tendency among certain young males to spend an inordinate amount of time flashing their Nob around, and imagining that others will admire it as much as they do themselves.

"In an imaginative medical innovation for these inveterate wankers, cutting off the offending member seems to effect a cure. In previous clinical trials (as with David Coburn) partial excision showed no significant reduction in offensive behaviour patterns."

Principal GOSH supporter, Mr Peter Pan , said, "I have a certain sympathy with Malcolm. I too, tried to present a positive case for union - with Wendy, in my case - but she just looked down, pointed, and said 'Bring it on'. Of course, under these circumstances it remained totally flaccid. That's why she called me 'the boy who never grew up'."

U-KOK leader, Alistair Darling, commented, "I have a certain sympathy with Peter. I flipped mine four times, in the hope that mine would be Better, but people still laughed at me."

Wee Willie Rennie said, "I have a certain sympathy with Alistair. But, whit's in a name? Eh? Bloody a'thing in my case".
