The only Scottish UKIP MEP is under mounting pressure to resign following the accusation that he may have fathered a secret love child in the 70's. Normally such an announcement would see the politician elevated into a position of power or be given a Lordship, but this barsteward seed of Satan has grown into the lowly embarrassing position of a Royal Mail postie who is actively peddling splittist propaganda aimed squarely at tearing apart our wonderful Empire.

David Co**burn MEP was chosen by the Scottish people in an act of defiance that prevented any of the separatist parties, especially Salmond's Natz, from gaining the moral high ground in the European Union separation referendum argument. His election proved beyond any doubt that the people of North North Britain hate foreigners just as much as the rest of the UK and would themselves abhor becoming foreigners within an independent Scotland.

However the electorate may have been less favourable to a possible philanderer being in office if they knew his alleged son was the "Indy Cyclist" Mark Coburn.

Mr Coburn Jnr rose to fifteen minutes of fame when he managed to raise the miniscule sum of £13,600 for local splittist groups by peddling his message all the way from Rome to Glasgow. It is believed the funds were dispersed to aid the local propagation of highly negative scaremongering messages of hopeless and destructive separation from the motherland.

Not content with one fund raising effort, Coburn Jnr has launched yet another desperate call for funds to supply YES extremist groups with their own local operating bases. In an amusing twist, surplus funds will be misguidedly donated to the Maryhill Foodbank as a token gesture to keep the benefit scrounging burdensome alive for an extra few days.

In reply to BBC Scotlandshire's email interrogation, Mr Coburn Jnr responded: "For those who are already involved in the campaign I really don't need to explain how much of an impact a campaign base can have. They already know.

"For those who don't, having a campaign base means that there is a central hub from which activists can operate especially in the last 6 weeks of the campaign. Bases/Shops can be used as: a meeting point for activists; an organisational base for planned canvass sessions; a focal point for the general public to drop in to ask questions and even (if large enough) somewhere to hold public events.

"The Maryhill Foodbank was a late addition to this cause as I am disgusted by the fact that foodbanks actually exist."
