

By Scrimping Cove-Rage, Our Partially Impartial correspondent

Over the last few days BBC Scotlandshire has come under severe and unwarranted criticism for being completely biased for the absolutely wonderful campaign of the Honourable Jim Murphy MP, the leader-in-waiting of the Scotlandshire branch office of Labour and the next First Minister of Scotlandshire.

Responding to this vile CyberNatz campaign against your totally fair and balanced state propagandist and one real true broadcaster of Scotlandshire, Director General Kenny McQuarrel roared: "The number of candidates standing against our choice is two to one against oor Jim.

"If anything that makes it two against one and the one is our man.

"And one of the also-rans has the backing of the archaic unions with all their brothers and sisters nonsense.

"How can that be biased in favour of his greatness Mr Murphy?"

To try to bring a little calm to the Natz section of the Interweb, this reporter has been instructed to write an article that is totally biased towards the other contenders, so here goes.

Standing against the future leader of the Scotlandshire branch office of the Labour Party are two other also-ran contenders.

Ms Sarah Boyack, who strangely appears to be a UKIP MSP, was first to declare her intention to stand. She kicked off the whole phoney competition for us, which only goes to prove she's just too nice a person to be the leader of our political wing.
